By WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

Five people, along with their family, friends and mentors, were given the opportunity to “celebrate a new life and a new beginning,” as they graduated from a 17-month drug court program.

The Lee, Estill and Owsley County Drug Court graduated another class of now clean and sober individuals who all said drug court gave them new opportunities.

Jamie Horn and Candice Watts of Estill County and Donald Farler, who was charged in Estill County, graduated last week in the ceremony at the Owsley County Courthouse in Booneville.

Drug Court is a treatment-based program designed as an alternative to jail for non-violent drug-offenders.

A similar theme was expressed by all of the graduates and guest speakers, including two Kentucky Supreme Court Justices: completing the program is no easy task but the benefits are life-changing.

Former drug court graduate Mike Tuttle started his treatment in Richmond but later moved to complete the program in Estill County. He spoke to the current graduates about how his life has changed since graduating and how difficult staying clean has been.

“I am proud of each of you,” he said. “Use what you’ve learned and please stick with it. Stay in touch and go to meetings.”

Children’s Clinic has been serving Estill County for 35 years

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

Few school-age children or their parents from this area can recall when Estill County didn’t have the services of a pediatrician to treat standard childhood illness like the chicken pox or the flu.

Dr. Ross Brown established Estill County’s first pediatric clinic in 1977 from humble beginnings when Dr. Virginia Wallace offered to make room for him and his patients in the back rooms of the Estill Medical Clinic.

Since then, the Children’s Clinic has been housed in several locations over the past 35 years but has become a thriving practice that offers more services than ever.

Dr. Vivian Ong is the current director of the Children’s Clinic. A native of the Philippines, she earned her medical degree from the University of Santo Tomas in 1991 and completed her pediatric training in 1996 at New York University. She completed residency training at the Appalachian Regional Healthcare Medical Center in Floyd County.

When her four-year contract ended there, she decided she wanted to stay in Kentucky.

“I liked the slower pace of the rural areas, and I liked how people in Kentucky are family-oriented. They are also very appreciative of our services.”

Upon learning that Dr. Brown was hiring a partner in Irvine, she interviewed for a position at the Children’s Clinic. The two connected over a shared Christian faith and a common interest in missionary work.

Ong was hired in 2000, and Brown eventually sold the practice to her in 2004.

The Children’s Clinic is now located on River Drive in the building that once housed the Children’s Clinic Annex and the Health Awareness Center.

In recent years, the clinic has added a pharmacy.

“We feel that this is a win-win

Marching Engineers recognize seniors also available for comparison.

Hensley said the test was taken by every junior of every learning level last school year. The students, who are now seniors are Estill County High School, topped all of the surrounding counties and the state average in math but fell short in the other areas and with their composite scores.

Estill's juniors scored an average of 19.5 on the math portion of the exam, almost a full point higher than the state average of 18.8. Powell County students averaged 17.7, Lee County averaged 17.8 and Clark County averaged 18.2.

The list included scores from two Madison County schools: Madison Central and Madison Southern. Madison Central scored 18.6 and Madison Southern scored 17.7 on the math portion of the ACT.

Hensley said some areas of concern for Estill County were English and reading, but that scores were expected to a little low on these portions of the exam.

Estill scored 17.4 in English and 18.2 in reading last year. Both scores fall short of the state averages of 18.4 in English and 19 in reading.

Powell and Lee counties both fell short also averaging 17.4 on the English portion.

Powell scored 18.6 in reading and Lee scored 18.4 in reading.

Hensley said the lower scores on these portions of the exam in Estill County are because of some changes to curriculum and focus in the last several years.

He said a shift from literature-oriented to information-oriented reading has taken place while these students were still in school.

"They are now expected to be able to read a manual, for example, and then answer questions about it," he said.

The English scores in the county, although lower than the state average, are an improvement of scores from the last several years, Hensley said.

Instructional Supervisor Tonya Isaacs told the board about other test scores that should be available next month.

She said end-of-course exam scores are not in the system yet but preliminary data should be available the first week of October.

Following a brief embargo period, the scores will be released to the public.

Isaacs also detailed for the move from the Commonwealth Accountability Testing System (CATS) test to the Unbridled Learning (KPREP) test for school accountability in the state.

CATS focused primarily on student proficiency and used a 140-point scale. The new KPREP system uses a 100-point scale and focuses on college and career readiness.

The switch came after Kentucky legislators passed Senate Bill 1 in 2009.

Isaacs warned scores will be lower than previous years because of the new system. She said parents and teachers should prepare themselves for these lower scores.

The board agreed the transition would be a difficult one but the new system is beneficial because of the focus is places on success after high school.

"I know it's going to be a hard transition," Board Member Patti Hood said. "But, I think it's going to be a good system."

Several principals were at the meeting and agreed the switch has caused them some stress.

"The tests last year were scary for teachers," West Irvine Principal BJ Martin said. "They didn't think they had prepared their students well enough because [the new test] was such a secret."

Hensley said the switch will ultimately be beneficial for the students because of the switch in focus.

"Thank God we're switching from school scores to individual growth," he said.

In other business, the board:

- Saw presentations from Estill Springs Elementary students about their curriculum and projects. For photos of the presentation, see page B10.
- Approved the treasurer's report and payment of bills
- Approved the second reading of Policy 03.6 requiring volunteer criminal background checks every three years with schools paying the cost
- Approved Section 7 academic team fee requests
- Approved an out-of-state trip for Estill County Middle School eighth graders.

EXPANDS

Cheryl Fling, Elise Zelnicker, Terri Valenti and Jan Snugden founded Peaceful Paws Springs (PPS) on Pitts Road in Ravenna several years ago, and thanks to $75,000 in grant money and additional donations, have been able to expand the operation to better serve the animals in need.

Over the weekend the friends celebrated the grand opening of Peaceful Paws and a donation of $10,000 that will be used to finish renovations to buildings on the property.

The most recent donation came from JP Morgan Chase Bank.

The money hasn't arrived yet, but in the minds of the friends, it's already been spent.

It will be used to put fencing outside a building used to house cats that need homes and to finish a building to house dogs.

There are currently between 50 and 60 cats and 10 dogs on the property. Some of the animals are personal pets, including all of the dogs, and others are in need of loving homes.

"Right now we don't have anywhere to keep dogs," Fling said.

The money will complete a brick structure on the property with cages on the inside and a fence surrounding it so the dogs can get some fresh air, sunshine and a little exercise while waiting to be adopted.

PPS is non-profit, no-kill rescue that operates entirely off grant money and donations of any kind.

There is no charge for adopting an animal from the shelter. The friends only ask for a donation, if possible.

"We don't want to charge people for these pets," Fling said. "Some people can afford to take care of an animal at their home but don't have the extra large sum of money it takes to adopt a pet."

At PPS all of the pets are spayed or neutered and checked out by a veterinarian before being adopted. They are also sent home with everything needed to get the pet started and adjusted to a new home comfortably.

PPS accepts donations of any kind: monetary, old blankets, stuffed animals or other toys for the pets, crushed cans, paper towels, cleaning supplies, litter boxes, food, litter, etc.

While Ben Chandler will try anything - from scaring seniors to attacking a third-generation coal miner - to distract the voters from his record of supporting Barack Obama, we will hold him accountable for his votes for the trillion-dollar stimulus, for the Cap and Trade energy tax, and against repeal of ObamaCare.

Chandler's record stands in sharp contrast to my proposals to stop wasteful spending, get the deficit under control, and get our economy moving again.

In Congress, I will work to:

- Promote growth by lowering taxes and simplifying the tax code;
- Rein in burdensome regulations and make the regulatory process accountable to Congress;
- Maximize domestic energy production and promote Kentucky coal;
- Repeal ObamaCare and replace it with market-based health care reforms that will improve portability, affordability and access to health care; and
- Force the government to live within its means by enacting enforceable spending caps and passing a Balancing Budget Amendment to the Constitution.

Ben Chandler opposes each of these items. He opposes making the 2001 and 2003 tax cuts permanent. He voted against numerous bills that would limit bureaucrats and create new oversight for significant regulations. He has voted to stop the Keystone XL pipeline and sponsored bills that would eliminate mining in Kentucky. He has voted to save ObamaCare time and time again. And he has voted six times to raise the debt ceiling by over $6 trillion dollars.

Ben Chandler's record is out of step with Kentucky's values, and it is time for him to retire.

You have my commitment to be a representative who stays in regular contact with the citizens of Estill County and to do everything I can as Congressman to give Kentucky businesses the freedom they need to innovate and create jobs.

Exciting new features, contests coming from CV&T staff

As you are reading this I am most likely trying my best to get a grip on things and prepare for another issue. The beauty of my profession is that it never stops. And, believe me, when I say never I really mean it.

As soon as I send the pages to our printer Tuesday evening I am making out a list of stories, photos and events I'll need to cover for the next issue.

This issue was a particularly difficult one for me because I was grieving in the process of writing, designing and editing.

I lost a dear uncle who suffered a lot with illness and pain in his life. I continue to try to remind myself he is no longer in pain.

In the midst of the sadness my family and I are experiencing, the world of newspaper must go on.

However sad I am about my recent loss, I must admit that today I remain optimistic about the CV&T. This issue marks my 18th as news editor. I like to hope the community can tell by now that I have done my best to mold the newspaper in a positive direction.

I am so excited to hear my readers tell me they enjoy the paper.

I am not a parent but I imagine every time someone tells the paper was good this week, I feel very much like a mom does when someone tells her how cute her kid is or when they win some award at school.

What makes me even more proud is how much I have seen our staff come together and rise above obstacles in the last several months.

During the last 18 weeks our staff members have each suffered through pain, illness, loss of family and friends, financial problems and surgeries on top of the general daily stress of the industry we work in.

I am so blessed to say I work with a group of women who pray for one another, encourage one another, love one another and truly see each other as friends.

While we have all been overcoming personal obstacles and set backs, we are still excited to announce some fun, interesting and community-based changes and additions to the CV&T.

I found out through word of mouth and searching through old issues of the newspaper that our former editors were always finding ways to get readers more involved in the newspaper.

This is done by giving opportunities for them to actually participate in the content by submitting photos, announcements and story ideas. I want our current readers to know this is still an option. Every week we accept church, community and school announcements.

We also accept wedding, graduation and anniversary announcements. I hope my readers know we are here to serve them, that includes printing their milestones and memories in the pages of the CV&T.

This week we have implemented some new ways for our readers to get involved, though.

First, please pay close attention to ads we have printed on pages A12 and B10. These ads map out the rules, regulations and details of two contests: a photography contest and a fall decorating contest.

I love to capture pictures of all the beautiful mountains around Irvine and Ravenna. I especially love the way they look as you enter town from Richmond Road and as you cross the bypass. I hope our readers will submit some of their own favorite Estill County pictures for our photography contest.

Please read the rules and, more importantly, please participate. And, if you have questions, ASK US.

The photo contest is something we hope to get up and running and then print every week. The decorating contest will extend through the month of October. Hopefully, you guys will participate, and we can have another contest for winter and Christmas decorations.

Our favorite page this week is the front of our B-section where our staff shared some of their picks of must-dos for the fall. The feature called, "The ABCs of Fall in Estill County," gives some information and tips about fun things to do before it gets too chilly.

Just because summer is over doesn't mean the fun has to end, too. Pick one or two activities to do each weekend of the fall. It could be something you've never tried or something you have done already and want to make a new tradition out of.

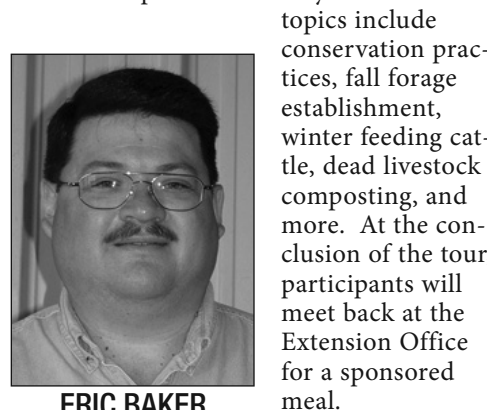

If you make a trip to one of our suggestions, snap a photo and send it to us, we'll be more than happy to let other readers know you took a chance on one of our suggestions and had a good time doing it.

As always, if you have suggestions, comments or news for us, just let us know.

We are easy to get in touch with. Try us by phone at 606-723-5161 or email me at whitney@hatfieldnewspapers.com. We are also on Twitter (@CVT_News) and Facebook.

Home heating safety is important

The weather outside is starting to cool down and much cooler days are just around the corner. As we begin to turn the heat up inside our homes we need to remember a few safety tips. We heat our homes in different ways, some of us use gas or propane, others use fireplaces or wood stoves and others use electric. No matter how you heat your home there are a few safety precautions you need to take.

If you use gas or propane you need to know:

- How to recognize a natural gas or propane gas leak in your home: if you detect a foul odor in you home or in the service line, leave the area immediately and call your local gas company.
- How to recognize a gas pipeline leak; look and listen. Look for dirt blowing into the air, for water bubbling from the ground, for fire coming from the ground, dead or dying vegetation on or near a pipeline right of way in an otherwise green area, or for a dry spot in a moist field. Listen for a roaring, blowing, or hissing sound.
- What to do if you suspect a gas pipeline leak; turn off and abandon any motorized equipment, leave the area immediately, warn others to stay away, and from a safe place call local emergency personnel and the pipeline operator.
- What NOT TO DO; DO NOT use open flames or bring anything into the area that may spark the gas leak (telephones, flashlights, motor vehicles, electric or battery-operated tools, etc.). DO NOT attempt to operate pipeline valves.
- In a natural gas emergency or suspected natural gas emergency call 911 and the gas line company. For a natural gas emergency involving Columbia Gas of Kentucky, call their toll free number 1-800-432-9515. For those residents that use propane gas from Hardy

Propane Gas Company call 723-2496.

If you use a fireplace or woodstove you should know:

- Have your chimney inspected by a professional prior to the start of every heating season. Creosote, a chemical substance that forms when wood burns, builds up in chimneys and can cause a chimney fire if the chimney is not properly cleaned. Always protect your family and home by using a sturdy screen when burning fires. Remember to burn only wood--never burn paper or pine boughs, which can float out of the chimney and ignite a neighboring home. Never use flammable liquids in a fireplace. For woodstoves, chimney connections and chimney flues should be inspected at the beginning of each heating season and cleaned if necessary. Burn only wood, and be sure the wood stove is placed on an approved stove board to protect the floor from heat and hot coals.

If you use electric or kerosene heaters you should know:

- Buy only electric heaters with the Underwriter's Laboratory (UL) safety listing. Check to make sure it has a thermostat control mechanism, and will switch off automatically if the heater falls over. Heaters are not dryers or tables; don't dry clothes or store objects on top of your heater. Space heaters need space; keep combustibles at least three feet away from each heater. Always unplug your electric space heater when not in use.
- Buy only UL-approved kerosene heaters and check with your local fire department on the legality of kerosene heater use in your community. Never fill your heater with gasoline or camp stove fuel; both flare-up easily. Only use crystal clear K-1 kerosene. Never overfill any portable heater. Use the kerosene heater in a well ventilated room.

CLINIC

situation for our patients," said Dr. Ong. "People can bring their children to the doctor, get lab work done, and pick up medicine on site. We have found this is very convenient for parents of babies. It is also more convenient in the wintertime."

Marilyn Raider has been an employee of Children's Clinic since 1985. "This has been a wonderful place to work," she said.

She's witnessed a lot of changes at the clinic, especially in the past couple of years. "We have added several services, and we now have the in-house lab here," she said.

Technology has greatly changed at the clinic too. "We first began to keep electronic medical records since the 90's," Raider said. "Dr. Brown was really a pioneer in the area for that."

Now the providers carry iPads into the office with them to record patient information.

"We have upgraded so that we can now do electronic prescribing," Ong said, "then the parent can pick up the medicine in the drive-thru. This is another added convenience for families."

"Patient's x-rays can also be viewed from here, and we have a partnership with UK hospitals to share x-rays with them if the need arises."

The clinic keeps records of patient immunizations through the Kentucky Immunization Registration program.

"We have a counselor who is available to meet with patients on Thursdays," said Dr. Ong. "The counselor is qualified to address mental and behavior problems such as ADHD, and to help those who are grieving or whose parents are going through a divorce, for example."

The clinic has three physician assistants on staff, allowing someone to be on call at all times.

Alison Connell, a familiar face to many at the Children's Clinic, will be helping out again one day a week during the winter months.

Dr. Ong says one of the most rewarding parts of her job is seeing patients she's treated over the past 12 years who are now grown and are bringing their own children to the clinic. She says it makes her "feel like a grandma."

"We are happy they have trusted the Children's Clinic," she said. "We appreciate them bringing their children, and we try to provide the best possible care."

Dr. Ong lives in Richmond, and her husband, Andy, is a computer programmer. They have one son, Andrew. In her free time, she likes to travel. Dr. Ong is also very involved in her church where she teaches Sunday school and volunteers in their health ministry.

In honor of their 35th birthday, the Children's Clinic will have a coloring contest. Local children may stop in to pick up a coloring sheet, which they will need to return to the clinic by Sept. 28. They are also invited to stop by on October 1st and 2nd for a birthday cupcake.

The Children's Clinic is open at 223 River Drive, Monday thru Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. To schedule an appointment, call 723-5142.

CDH journey is like a rollercoaster ride

If there's one thing we've learned about CDH in the 11 months since our grandson Clay made his entrance into the world, it's to expect the unexpected.

In the last update I wrote about the baby, I said that his doctor had given the go-ahead to begin trials off the vent, beginning with a few minutes a couple of times each day. Clay seemed to handle those trial periods off the vent pretty well.

About the same time, the doctor also discontinued some meds, but those changes didn't have as good an outcome.

Follow-up labs a week later showed that Clay's electrolytes were dangerously out of balance. The doctor called and said to bring the baby to the hospital and to expect to stay a couple of days. Soon after treatment, the electrolytes were back up to a safe level and they got to go back home.

The morning they came home, though, his parents noticed Clay was breathing harder and his heart rate was up. He had a bit of a fever. The next day they were headed to the hospital again with Clay clearly in distress.

After being admitted and given antibiotics and something for his fever, he rebounded quickly, but cultures had to be done to find the exact cause of his illness.

It turns out that Clay had contracted a nasty bacterial infection, one commonly found in intensive care units. The bacteria caused some pneumonia to develop.

Just like that, he was back on the hospital vent, requiring extra oxygen. He and his parents spent five more long days and nights in the PICU.

This round in the hospital, though relatively short, was hard on baby and parents. It was almost like being in another hospital, because the PICU side is a different world from the NICU side. For one thing, the doctors and nurses are not as familiar with his situation.

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

The stress of having a sick baby is bad enough, but the added stress of confusion and conflict is definitely not a good thing.

Labs had to be drawn every few hours in the hospital. Mom and Dad had a hard time watching nurses fish for veins, an experience Hannah called "traumatic" for all of them.

I had a little taste of that trauma a couple of days ago when Clay needed yet another blood sample drawn. I went with them to our local hospital, where the lab technicians worked carefully and diligently to draw blood with as little discomfort to the baby as possible. He's a plump little guy and it's not easy to find a vein.

One advantage to having labs done at the local hospital is that when people you know do the poking, they try to be very gentle about it.

I'm not sure which moved me to tears the most—Clay's big brown eyes looking at me so pleadingly, or the kindness of the lab techs. Either way, I'm pretty sure I'm a much bigger wimp than the baby or his brave momma, who handles all this with amazing calmness.

Still, I know these times are very hard for her and my heart breaks for her and Eric, knowing the worry they go through when their baby suffers.

Much about the CDH journey is uncertain. Every case is different, with different challenges and obstacles to overcome. The journey is full of ups and downs, twists and turns--that's one of the surest things I've learned about CDH in the 11 months since Clay made his entrance into the world.

This road he's on sometimes gets bumpy, but there are many joys amid the sorrows, and the concern and kindness people show makes the hard times more bearable.

It will most likely be a few more weeks now before Clay gets more trials off the vent, but I'm thankful he's on the mend and showing off his toothy grin again.

Cub Scout's Pack 144 Back in Action

Estill County's Pack 144 has begun a new year in full swing. Cub Master and Bear Den leader, Jason Baber wants to remind everyone that it is never too late to sign up. "Physical, emotional, and spiritual growth are so very important for our youth. Cub Scouts is the first phase in teaching the values and morals that are needed to be successful, confident, and productive adults."

Cub Scout meetings are held every Tuesday night in the cafeteria of West Irvine Elementary at seven o'clock. During these meetings, each Den learns ways to better themselves and how to help the community while having fun in a wholesome, family oriented environment.

The Dens are categorized into five different groups: Tiger (first grade), Wolf (second grade), Bear (third grade), First year Webelos, and Second year Webelos. Webelos stands for We Will Be Loyal Scouts.

The Tiger Den's leader is Shaun Hale and his assistant is Jeremy Simpson. "My son and I joined Cub Scouts for all the adventure and fun, but we are getting so much more out of it! Cub Scouts molds these boys into the young men that we all hoped they would become. The parent/guardian plays the biggest role in it," says Hale.

Leading the Wolf Den is Karl Rifenbark with assistant Cole Babb. Rifenbark states, "Cub Scouts strengthens these young men who will soon become role models in our community."

Cub Master and Bear Den leader, Jason Baber has been a part of the Cub Scout family for three years. "Cub Scouting has allowed me to learn what wonderful young men live in our community. I look forward to watching these scouts blossom into strong, ethical men that live their lives with meaningful principles."

Billy Conner, First year Webelos Leader says his goal for his Den is to help each scout "Strive for Success." Conner's wife, Amanda is in charge of the ordering and sales of the popcorn and batteries that raise money for our Scouts. Amanda Conner states, "Popcorn sales benefit our community and 70% of the proceeds are for Pack 144 to reward all scouts for their hard work and determination. Funds are used for Scout needs." For any questions over popcorn sales or how to order, please contact Amanda Conner at conner_love_4ever@yahoo.com.

Travis Holton, Den Leader of Second year Webelos says, "I look forward in helping these young me in developing skills and good characteristics that they will carry with them into Boy Scouts and the rest of their lives."

Michele Benton, Administer of Advancement, is responsible for Scout advancement and sports programs. "Advancement for the Scout is so very important. Advancement provides opportunities for Scouts to improve on so many levels. Values and self-confidence are so important," says Benton.

Pack 144 encourages young men and their families to join Scouts at any time. The Fall Campout at Camp McKee is quickly approaching. If you are looking for safe fun and adventure for your son, Cub Scouts is the place to be.

A Kentucky Adventure by Leigh Anne Florence

Illustrated by Chris Ware

Chapter 3

"May I have another apple?" I asked Mom as we traveled down the Mountain Parkway.

"You've eaten two, son," Mom said. "I'm afraid more will hurt your belly."

"The oatmeal and grapefruit were good, but they aren't sticking to my ribs like a bacon-egg biscuit does," I replied.

"My oatmeal was yummy," Chloe said, "especially topped with honey. Besides, remember what Doc said about co-letter-straw?"

"It's pronounced ko-LES-tu-rawl, sweetie" Mom said as she and Dad smiled.

"You're right, Chloe," I answered, thankful my sister cared about our health – and thankful Doc said I didn't have to give up stuff for the rest of my life. I imagined sopping up my egg with Mom's homemade biscuits when I saw "Exit 33: Slade/Beattyville." Dad took the exit ramp and pulled into the service station at 7:58 a.m. We spotted a canary yellow four-door pickup truck in the parking lot.

"Sam must be here!" I announced, unbuckling my seat belt. Instead of Sam, a pretty girl about 20 years old appeared.

"You must be Woody," the girl said.

"Yes, ma'am?" I answered, waiting for the rest of my family. "Where's Sam?"

"You're looking at her," she said with a gorgeous smile. "Sam is short for Samantha. And since you're wondering, I'm as strong as any man," she said, winking at me. "Hop in your car and follow me."

"Hey, gang," Sam said in a chipper voice when we arrived at our destination. "Welcome to Red River Gorge. Most of the gorge is located inside Daniel Boone National Forest and has been designated a National Natural Landmark."

"It's beautiful, even though we're in the middle of nowhere," I said, trying to decide where we were.

"The gorge can be split into two different sections," Sam told us, trying to help us get our bearings. "The upper section starts to the north of the town of Campton and finishes at the county line of Wolfe and Menifee counties. The lower section begins at the Wolfe-Menifee county line and goes almost to Indian Creek in Powell County. The gorge features high sandstone cliffs, rock shelters, waterfalls and natural bridges. One of the world's top Hrock-climbing destinations, the gorge has more than 100 natural sandstone arches – more than any other place except the Rocky Mountains."

"We've never climbed rocks before," Chloe informed Sam.

"We're not going to be rock-climbing today, sweetheart. We're going to zip-line!"

I didn't know what zipper lining was, but Mom's and Dad's eyes became very large.

"Everyone needs to wear these harnesses, helmets and gloves – and empty all of your pockets. Once you're ready I'll explain everything," Sam said.

We obeyed Sam's orders. "Uh, Miss Sam, my equipment's broken," I told her. "There aren't any zippers on here."

Sam smiled, shook her head and explained.

"A zip line was originally used as a method of transportation where other methods are not practical, but today it is also used for recreation. Zip lines are created by stringing a strong cable between two points – in this case trees – and attaching a pulley to the cable. To use the zip line, we will attach you to the pulley and launch you across to the other side. Since you're newbies, we are going to put you on the line that is only 330 feet across. Once we launch you, you'll pick up speed and will travel around 50 miles an hour before you stop. Once you see the other tree, start tapping the line with your glove. That's your brake and will make you stop," Sam explained, as if she was telling us how to ride a tricycle. "Any questions?" she asked.

"How many zip lines are in Kentucky?" Dad asked.

"Currently there are at least six places in the state to zip," Sam said, "but we're adding new places all the time."

"How is this exercise?" Chloe asked.

"It strengthens our muscles and gets the adrenaline pumping," Sam explained. "Besides, we don't want to start with strenuous activities since you aren't in shape."

I had a more important question.

"Uh, how high are we?"

"About 250 feet over the gorge," Sam said as my tummy did somersaults.

With that, Sam attached our family to the pulleys, and before I knew it I was soaring across the gorge to the other side. Even though it was fast, I was still aware of my major mistake.

A

Aldersgate Camp and Retreat Center in Ravenna is a wonderful place to visit during the fall. Walk around and check out the Fitchburg Furnace and take in nature's beauty.

N

Neighbors should always try and lend a helping hand. Why not help someone in your neighborhood clean up and get prepared for the coming months? Clean Up Broadway was a big success, clean up your street and then show us your progress.

B

Basketball: Fall sports are in full swing now. Get together with those you love and go cheer on one of our local teams. GO ESTILL!

O

Orchard: Fall is the best time to go picking for apples in a local orchard. Fresh, locally grown fruit is always best!

Carnivals at school are some of our favorite childhood memories. Re-live some of those moments and help locals schools raise money at their fall carnivals and festivals while enjoying a night out.

P

Picker's Paradise: Spend a couple of hours one evening searching for treasures here or in other flea markets and antique shops around town. You never know what you might find.

Decorate! Dig out all those fall decorations and help your neighborhood get into the spirit of fall. Take a picture & enter your handiwork in our Fall Decorating Contest. You might win a prize!

Q

Quilt Barn Trail has been featured in our paper throughout the years. Have you taken the time to see these beautiful works of art for yourself? They are amazing!

E

Every Body's Gym isn't just for the summer time and neither is staying in shape. Drop some pounds at the 24-hour gym to make room for all those holiday goodies.

R

Rock House sports an amazing view of our county. Why not take a walk and see for yourself?

F

Friday Night Lights... Get off your couch and go cheer on our local football teams.

S

Spooky: Round up some friends and go to a Haunted House! It'll get your blood rushing, your heart racing and your friends laughing at how you screamed when that goblin jumped out.

G

Gorge, Red River Gorge that is! Fall is a wonderful time of the year to take a ride and look at the fall foliage.

T

Trick-Or-Treating and Trick-Or-Trot are great ways to get out and enjoy Halloween. Make sure you take your children out this year and show off those costumes.

H

Historical Society: The Estill County Historical Society Museum located on Broadway in Irvine is a great way to spend a Saturday morning. Walk around and look at our local history and ask questions. Members are always happy to help in any way they can.

ENCOURAGING WORD: WHEN LIFE IS PROPERLY GROUNDED

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

It was a rather warm summer evening in the childhood of my life. Like most families in that area, we went outside following supper to escape the heat; at that time, I had not heard of air conditioning. Sometimes, joined by neighbors, adults sat and talked while the children played nearby in the darkness.

That evening, for some reason as they talked, the conversation turned to fear of the darkness.

Since I was about five years old and the oldest of the children, my name was mentioned, and I was asked if I would be afraid, although it was dark, to go to the garden, about one hundred and fifty yards over the hill behind the house.

Afraid of the darkness but filled with childhood confidence, I assured them that I would go.

Then, to the surprise of all those gathered there, I, continually looking to the right and to the left, followed the path though the darkness over the hill, past the barn, through the garden gate, and into the garden. To assure those testing my courage that I had gone all the way in the darkness of that night, I plucked a ripe tomato, took it, and proudly handed it to my father who was a bit surprised by my action.

The way ahead through life is not always as clear and bright as a sunny summer day; there is much that is unknown. Darkness obscures some of the way, and uncertainty is a reality to be faced regularly. Yet, one must not cower at the thought of darkness but go forward through that uncertainty.

Many years ago a group of people faced many uncertainties. There were problems within and problems without the group. Uncertainty and darkness were on every hand. A trusted friend wrote a letter to them assuring them that they could move ahead with no fear of the ogres hid in the darkness. When life is properly grounded, “we are always confident” to go forward.

Subject to any and all applicable restrictive convents, existing easements, utility easement, right-of-way, provisions of applicable zoning statutes and ordinances, and rules and regulations of the Department of Health, if any. Also regulation that might apply thru planning & zoning.
The above described property shall be sold upon the following terms and conditions:

1. The purchaser shall take the sale real estate free and clear of the claims of the parties to this action, but it shall be sold subject to the following:

a. current year (2012) ad valorem real estate taxes affecting the real estate for which the purchaser shall take no credit on the purchase price;

b. easements, restrictions, and stipulations of record;

c. any current assessments for public improvements levied against the property; and

d. any matters which would be disclosed by an accurate survey or inspection of the property.

2. The sale shall be made to the highest and best bidder or bidders. The successful bidder shall pay cash or make a deposit of one-third (1/3) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. Any purchaser, other than the Plaintiff, who does not pay cash in full, shall be required to execute a bond, with surety thereon acceptable to the Master Commissioner to secure the unpaid balance of the purchase price and sale bond shall bear interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the date of sale until paid, and shall have the same force and effect as a judgment and shall remain and be a lien on the property until paid. The purchasers shall have the privilege of paying all of the balance of the purchase price prior to the expiration of the thirty (30) day period.

3. The successful bidder at sale, at bidder’s own expense, may carry fire and extended insurance coverage on the improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, in an amount at least sufficient to cover a loss to the extent of the court appraised value of the improvements on the real estate or the unpaid balance of the purchase price is fully paid, in the amount which-ever is less, with the loss payable clause to the Master Commissioner. Failure of the purchaser to effect such insurance coverage shall not affect the validity of the sale or the purchaser’s liability there under, but shall entitle, but not require, any party adjudicated an interest in the real estate, after giving notice to the Master Commissioner, to effect said insurance and furnish evidence of the policy to the Master Commissioner. The premium of the insurance policy shall then be charged to the purchaser as purchaser’s cost.

4. In the event the Plaintiff becomes the purchaser of the real estate at the Master Commissioner’s sale, and it the Plaintiff’s bid if less than its lien adjudged herein, Plaintiff may comply with the terms of sale by taking credit upon this Judgment without making the cash deposit or execution the sale bond as provided for in this Judgment.
